Additional Information

Technical Information	The RTD located in the exciter stator winding are not replaceable. As the exciter stator is impregnated it will get damaged, when trying to replace the exciter stator RTD's. Hence it is not recommended to use as spare parts, nor to consider replacing them. In case the RTD's are broken they must first be measured (which must be determined at terminal blocks inside the enclosure). If they indeed are broken then it must be replaced with a different part, in a total different way, which will require time and effort from our engineering department.
